Due to War Emergency.

A considerable number of teachers in Washington schools were admitted as emergency teachers during the war. At that time, it is explained, there was a scarcity of teachers, due to the high salaries offered young women in war work As a result, school officials say, it the House.

It is generally believed in Congress who lacked the usual qualifications.

In their efforts to cause as little hardship as possible to these teachers, it is said, school officials determined upon a five-year probationary eriod. During this perfod many of the teachers have met the standard requirements, while others have left the service. However, it is admitted, there still remains a number who are of comparatively little use in the instruction of children.

Necessary to Protect Pupils.

Commenting on this situation before the Board of Education, Superintendent Bailou said: "While it is an unpleasant duty to do this, it is necessary if we are to maintain a high quality of instruction in the schools. In our effort to protect was necessary to "let down the bars" to some degree and accept teachers who lacked the usual qualifications.

Ballou Urges Importance of Passing School Salaries

Declaring that the teachers' salary bill and the Capper reorganization bill are the two most important pieces of school legislation before Congress, Superintendent Frank W. Ballou, in the second section of his annual report, on the New River near Hinton, W. The Commission extended for one year the permit issued the Freshwater work on its project in Alaska, and for three months the permit of Charles B. Hawley to develop power on the New River near Hinton, W. W. released yesterday, urges the efforts of every interested organization in the District toward having these measures enacted into law.

"The legislation fixing the salaries of employes and establishing ine plan of organization and administration of the school system of Washington was passed in 1906. Outside of piecemeal legislation in appropriation acts, no supplementary legislation has been passed since that time," the report states. "Since 1996 great progress has been made in the theory and practice of educational administration. Junior high schools have been established.
